MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE,
FOUNDED IN 1800.

On the Central Vermont Railroad, Rutland Division.

The College is finely located in the midst of a beautiful park in the village of Middlebury. The locality is healthful, and the College offers the advantage of thorough instruction at a moderate cost.

The Faculty is composed of experienced Professors, some of whom have had a long and successful experience here or elsewhere; and owing to the size of the College they are able to have an unusually close and helpful relation to the students. The College offers a carefully prepared course of study, adapted to the needs of the times, and is able to give a solid foundation for the professional studies, or the more practical duties of active life.

CABINET AND MUSEUM.

An extensive and completely arranged Cabinet of rocks, minerals and fossils is designed for the constant use of the class in Geology.

The Cabinet and Museum contain a large number of specimens, and are designed especially for the use of the classes in Natural History. The specimens are all placed under their respective classes, are newly arranged in the new cabinet, and are conspicuously labelled.

LIBRARY AND READING ROOM.

The College Library contains 16,000 volumes, and a permanent fund has been recently established for its enlargement, and a thousand dollars is to be expended during the fall term for new books. The books are conveniently arranged in the new library room and are open to the students from 12 to 2 o'clock. A College Reading Room, free to all, has periodical literature on file.

PRIZES AND EXPENSES.

Numerous prizes are offered for excellence in the different departments. These, in connection with the liberal aid by scholarships furnished to those whose circumstances require it, render the tuition of many practically free, and no young man of energy need be deterred by financial considerations from entering the College. Board at the Boarding Hall for $2.00 per week.

Next Commencement occurs Wednesday, June 27, 1888.

AUTUMN TERM BEGINS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6TH.

For Catalogue and further information, address the President,

Prologue.

Good people all, behold the play!
The curtain rises on the stage.
We ask your courteous patronage,
As college scenes we here portray.

Some acts are grave, and some are gay:
Yet all are truthful, we engage.
Good people all, behold the play!
The curtain rises on the stage.

Cornets and horns have ceased to bray;
The prompter scans the opening page,
The actors now begin to wage
The mimic strife in brave array;
Good people all, behold the play!

JANITOR, - - - S. R. BOLTON.
As this is our "debut" with the quill in the capacity of editors we are confident that, as a literary production, this work will prove a failure. If anyone insists upon investigating its contents he will find that it bears strong proof of the integrity and veracity of the editors. With the above principle in view we begin the wearisome and arduous task as editors of the KALEIDOSCOPE, sensible of the fact that criticisms will be passed upon the merits and demerits of the work. Yet it is to be hoped that we shall be commended for placing in the hands of the Alumni and Undergraduates a work that they can seldom purchase, for it is seldom issued.

But we must hasten to our proper vocation—that of noting the changes that have taken place in our college. Many are visible in that grave and reverend body, the faculty. Prof. Scott, who so carefully guided us over the odes of Horace and "scenes" of Livy, has left to sail "across the sea." We'll not forget him. Many of us have souvenirs stored away—handsome parchments noted for their "thought," 20° below zero. But while we regret his departure we extend a hearty welcome to Prof. Patton, who occupies his chair, and who already has gained a place in the freshman's heart.

There have been no more changes in the faculty. We, as undergraduates, can testify to their fitness and quality. Every member feels this responsibility; and especially does our honored and respected President feel it, who spares no toil in laboring for the best interests of the college.

As we look over the college in general we hardly know what to speak of first. Our last catalogue shows that the numbers are increasing. The number who entered this year is rather less than the preceeding. However, they make up in quality what they lack in quantity.

Our college not only maintains its old reputation but is constantly raising its standard of work. The tension under which we are so faithfully kept cannot help bringing about the best results.

We regret to say that there has not been the usual interest manifested in college sports. Foot-ball is defunct. Base ball has not been pursued with the same enthusiasm as in the days of yore. Our games so far this season have been a very near approach to a "fizzle." We hope to see it revived in all its "pristine glory." More enthusiasm and interest are wanted. If the team possessed this it would gain for us a position among the colleges of which we would not be ashamed. But while we lament over certain things, we are glad to relate that an unusual interest has been taken in our field-day sports. The records made at our last meeting were very good, considering the track and grounds.

And now, before coming to "ad finitum," we wish our successors all the encouragement that they can receive, and desire them to labor in the future as we have in the past in order that they may bring forth Kaleidoscopes worthy of representing Middlebury in the college world.
We present in this number of the Kaleidoscope a portrait of Prof. William H. Parker, who, from his long connection with the College, is doubtless known by every living Alumnus. He was born at Hartford, N. Y., in 1809, though his early life was passed in North Granville, N. Y., where he fitted for College. He graduated at Middlebury in 1830,—fifty-eight years ago. After graduation he was for two years Principal of Bennington Academy at Bennington Center. In 1832 he was appointed Tutor in Middlebury College, and served with marked success the customary term of two years. In 1834 he entered Andover Theological Seminary. At the close of his second year's study in that institution he was appointed Instructor in Languages in St. Lawrence Academy, Potsdam, N. Y., and served in that capacity for ten years. He was then appointed Principal of the School, and remained there two years longer.

In 1848 he accepted the chair of Mathematics in Middlebury College. He remained in active service in this professorship for thirty-three years, until in 1881 failing health made it necessary for him to give up the greater part of his work. He still retains a position on the Faculty as Professor Emeritus.

Prof. Parker has also served the College in other important positions. He has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1855, and during nearly thirty years of this time he has filled the responsible office of Treasurer. The remembrance of his long and faithful services will long be cherished in the hearts of the Alumni of Middlebury College.

*Abbreviation for Starr Hall.
THE last act of the drama is being played; soon the curtain will fall; then shall we enter the larger stage of the world, with the blessing of our Alma Mater resting upon us.

Soon after the successful launching of our KALEIDOSCOPE, we found ourselves Seniors.

As we came back in the fall, bronzed by the summer sun, we felt ourselves equal to all emergencies. Psychology, however, physiological, in addition to the ordinary kind, nearly floored us; but the genius of the class triumphed, and our obedience to the "know thyself" of Socrates would have done the heart of that old gentleman good could he have seen it.

We also enjoyed the quaint sketches of Chaucer, and the magnificent creations and portraitures of Shakespere; in fact, we confined our attention so closely to the works themselves that we neglected to find out what the critics thought, and so a majority of the class had a second opportunity to investigate said critics.

We have sipped at the founts of law and theology. Those so minded have made and increased their collections, geological and botanical.

So much for our scholarship. Of those who survived Freshman year, all save one remain unto this day, and we have added to our numbers, so that we shall graduate within one as many as entered with us.

One of the notable achievements of the class was the inauguration of a proper observance of Washington's birthday. Hitherto, the day has been remembered chiefly as an occasion for the begging off from the usual recitations; the idea of celebrating the day in a fitting manner, at the suggestion of our Professor in English Literature, was adopted by the class with enthusiasm and well carried out. The chapel was draped with flags and hung with portraits; the friends of the college were invited; a programme was printed, and the exercises, consisting of a poem, orations and music, passed of very pleasantly. Afterwards the class invited some friends to a little collation in the library, where toasts were given and a pleasant time enjoyed. It is hoped the custom may be perpetuated.

Our thoughts reach forward rather than back. Before us there rises a confused picture of graduation oration, moonlight walks, examinations, tennis, base ball, reading, study, drives, boat-rides, commencement, exit, and then—we shall leave Middlebury with fond memories, and kind wishes toward faculty and townspeople, “and their sisters and their cousins” and all.

O College Days!

O COLLEGE days! In after years, When Time hath proved our hopes and fears, May each swift passing season find Some added reason to remind Of all that memory endears.

May we go forth to useful spheres, Each prospered as he perseveres, But never to thy worth be blind,

O College days!

So when the boat which Charon steers Across the Stygian wave appears, The long-ago will loom in mind; And thou, with memory's roses twined, Wilt gleam in beauty through our tears,

O College days!

Junior History.

O Junior, heaven-born child of ease,
With what high scorn you look on Sophomore strife,
And with what care you guide the little feet
Of Freshmen through the wiles of college life.

The hands upon the old clock, etherealized in the smoke wreaths of Junior year, point to the eleventh hour of our college life. The Senioric haven, now visible through the mists of examination rapids, invites our endeavor, and if shipwreck hath not cause in small flowers, our little bark will soon cast anchor to unfurl the Alumni banner. In appreciation of our life at Middlebury, to toss one fond kiss to Alma Mater will not lessen our devotion, nor can a rehearsal of our varied experiences becloud our remembrance of college days—the background of our lives and success, if success we may ever attain. Yet,

"Of joys departed,
Nor to return, how painful the remembrance."

Our entrance was the watch-word for a revival of athletic sports. Through the efforts of '89 men an intercollegiate league was organized and an impetus given to home rivalry. Yet in our record upon the diamond we have always given evidence of a peculiar trait—magnanimity. Thrice, yea four times, has victory perched upon our bats, and thrice have we yielded to the erring ways of the other classes and the prejudices of military umpires. In field-day sports the prizes were given to the successful competitors. We were not unsuccessful. Our record in the class-room, though perhaps not the most praiseworthy, displays more than the usual pleasantries attendant upon the study of mechanics and analytics. Our original dissertations upon the atomic and molecular theories as illustrated in the cerebral capacity of '88 have frequently caused our professor in physics to exclaim, "All that glitters is not gold." The final examination in chemistry will long be remembered as the best example of duplicate ingenuity on record. Yet our relations with Professor Seely will constitute the most pleasant phase of our college life, and "God bless you" will be our farewell to a man whose unalloyed kindness, Christian example and profound scholarship will ever bind us to Middlebury College.

'89 in literature! Does not the old marble mill still record its upward flight? Do not the photographs of that Junior exhibition as it was, found in every well-furnished drawing room, attest its ingenuity?

But we must hasten. With this volume we take our farewell of the public. Soon the curtain will fall on our last college exercise. On what shall it next arise? That is for one wiser than me to foretell, but "through and around that curtain I see glimpses of unsetting suns," and in the dim distance, her face lit up with a smile, the Goddess Fate writing with pencil of gold upon the blue above, "Success, but not without endeavor."

\[\text{Junior Year.}\]

\[\square \triangle \square\]

\text{THREE-QUARTERS of our race is run,}
Its work and pleasures all are done.
No more proud eighty-eight we tame
In cane-rush or in base-ball game.
At last we've reached that golden age,
By poets sung and praised by sage,
Known to the world as Junior Year.
Its name brings joy to student's ear
And calls up in the raptured mind
Visions fair of every kind.
Looked to with hope by Freshman's eye;
Left by the Senior with a sigh;
One long delicious hour of rest,
A breathing time before we test
The unknown wilds of Senior year. \[L. W. A.\]

Sophomore History.

Sophomore year found us with four less gallant heroes to wake the dead in the Latin recitation room. One had "hitched" himself to Garfield's alma mater. Another had gone to "pray" amid the terrors of the wild West, far from the "blossoming scenes of old Middlebury."* The "chaplain"† had proved himself able to cope with the wiles of the devil, but not with those of the mathematical Professor and the "cunning little Irishman"—well, he has gone where above fifty percent is not essential.

Never again will Parson Fletcher astonish his parishioners with the class yell in place of the benediction.

Professor Scott has gone, too, and the rice scattered on the depot-steps bespeaks our well-wishes for his wedding tour. What glorious times we had during his administration and occasionally we learned something,‡ too. Only a good Latin scholar can scan Horace from an interlinear text, but not a few of us demonstrated our ability in that direction. But a year has made us mellower§ and so his successor has had an easier time.

True, the neighboring cemetery is becoming unpopular through the noisy French recitations, but as yet no old patriarch has mistaken the uproar for the day of judgment.¶

* What hideous puns!
† Because too religious for the companionship of his class.
‡ No doubt Prof. Scott would be surprised to know it.
§ Like rotten apples.
¶ When Gabriel's trump shall sound,
   And all the dead arise,
   Those very turkeys '90 stole,
   Shall hang before their eyes.
To mention our battles is but to recount our victories. Not the least treasured among our college souvenirs are the fragments of two canes. The rush at the beginning of the present year is not worth recording.

Then, what a time we had at our class supper! With our plug hats and canes* we marched to the depot in a body, but '91 made no attempt to stop us and we departed for the scene of banqueting, un molested. There we so thoroughly aroused the inhabitants that the old Vermont town has some life yet.†

Twice has Starr Hall resounded with our songs and laughter as we sipped our cider and puffed our cigarettes. "Some one has stolen my key-hole and hid it under the door-knob," but we were not all thus.

Again have we met this year to celebrate the birthday of the co-eds of whom '90 may well be proud. Right well did they respond to their toasts and right well did we applaud them.

We have been noted for our surprises. As Junior Ex. approached, confident opinions were heard on all sides that there would be the toughest ram that has ever appeared. But the first speaker delivered his oration, the second followed and so on till the end of the programme. But no ram appeared‡.

We are nearing the happy hunting grounds of Junior year. Another month in the mathematical room and we bid good-bye § forever to the formula of the pendulum and inclined plane. Long shall we remember them.

We are half way around the college race-course. Although we have not accomplished as much as we expected, yet we have learned to love "old Middlebury." Long may she prosper.

* Plug hats and canes,
Cigarettes and no brains.
† For further information see records of Brandon police court.
‡ Scart by Prexy's threats.

*Special student.
Knowing that the public always appreciate a good thing, we gladly submit our class history to them, feeling assured that it will be highly prized.

The first important event was the cane-rush. This was decided in favor of the opposing party. It was through no fault of ours, however; for we struggled manfully, as the photograph of the Sophomores proved. We lost the rush through Sophomore treachery, not wisdom. If only at the critical moment some one had shouted, "Constable from Brandon," we undoubtedly would have been victorious.

The Sophomores attempted to horn us, but a large part of us slept calmly through the whole affair, and those who were aroused took the horns from the disturbers of their peace and contributed them to the treasures of the class.

The Sophomores were greatly distressed one morning to find that one their number was walking upon both his hands and feet. Being unwilling to own him, they decorated him with our colors and attempted to pass him off as a member of '91. But, although one of their brightest men, he felt so insignificant among our superior minds that, in a fit of desperation, he committed suicide.

A few mornings after '90 was greatly grieved at seeing one of their representatives, holding a banner of their class-colors draped in sombre hues, bound to a post and just about to be cremated. After an appropriate hymn had been chanted with musical accompaniment, the torch was applied and the van of the Sophomore army perished ignobly in the flames.

The class-banner of '91 having been treacherously stolen a few days before, the Sophomores at once produced it, blazing brightly; a short, sharp struggle ensued; and, as the smoke of battle cleared away, it revealed '90 beating a disorderly retreat, while '91 retired victorious, with the arms and munitions of their opponents.

Our peanut-drunks have passed off very pleasantly though not hilariously and have been greatly enjoyed by all, especially the one tendered us by our class-president.

The Sophomores struggled for six long weeks to obtain satisfactory class-colors. But we quietly waited and watched until, learning that they had finally obtained the desired shades, we considered that the combination would do very well for '91's colors for a day or two. Accordingly, before any public affair had permitted the Sophomores wearing them, we gladdened their hearts by showing them how nicely the colors harmonized with various shades of complexion.

At field-day sports we did nobly, carrying off more than our share of the honors and breaking some of the previous records. If there could only have been purchased in town "a rope strong enough to hold," '90's reason for not meeting us in a trial of strength would undoubtedly have won the "tug of war," but unfortunately none could be obtained of the requisite size. We are well represented on the ball-nine and will strive to bring glory to the class by our brilliant playing. We possess more musical talent than all the other classes. A large part sing well; all sing a little; several play various instruments; and two hold positions in the college quartette.

Like all classes, we have lost some of our number. Four have gone from us, but the memory of their pleasant, cheerful faces will linger with us throughout our college course.

† See Boynton's milk bill.
‡ The Sophs, may meet them in a physical combat, but never in a trial of intellect, for they have none.
If we have not as many valorous deeds to recount as some of the other classes, we congratulate ourselves that none of our numbers are laboring to make up back-work in the various departments. We glory in the fact that no member of the class has ever received a "condition." We have made a brilliant record in the class-room, as the books will show. The fact that we have read a quantity of Latin upon which no "horses"* could be procured is but another evidence of our ability. Having made such a start, we are confident that, throughout our whole course, in accordance with the spirit of our motto,

*Lahore et Honore,

we will succeed in keeping good our record.

* That is, "horses" not ridden to death by the Sophomores.

HON. JOHN WOLCOTT STEWART.

John Wolcott Stewart, ex-Governor of Vermont and Member of Congress, was born in Middlebury, November 24, 1825. He prepared for college at the Middlebury Academy and entered with the class of 1846, graduating with high honors.

Early in his college career he displayed an unusual talent for the law. Soon after his graduation he entered the office of the Hon. Horatio Seymour and remained therein till 1850. Commencing practice at Middlebury, he conducted it alone till 1854.

In 1852 Mr. Stewart began to take a prominent part in the political affairs of the State. In 1852 he was elected to the office of State's Attorney for Addison County, which he held for three successive years. In 1853 he was elected a member of the Lower House; and the records of the Legislature at that time show that he was active in the debates and weighty in his logic.

In 1861 and 1862, Mr. Stewart was elected a member of the State Senate. In 1865, 1866 and 1867 he was returned to the House and at each session he was elected presiding officer of the body. In this position his rulings were received with great favor. In 1876 he was re-elected to the House, and was chosen Speaker for the fourth time by a unanimous vote.

In 1870 he occupied the Gubernatorial chair of Vermont. He was the first Governor to be elected under the present law. His recommendations were readily adopted by the Legislature; and the manner in which he served in this high office was honorable to himself and to the State.

In 1882 he was elected to the 48th Congress from the First District, receiving 15,638 votes against 6009 for his opponent. He was re-elected to the 49th and 50th Congresses. As a Congressman he has justified the expectations of the State that he would represent its interests in a most worthy manner.

Not only in State, but in business affairs has he taken a prominent part. He was a director of the Middlebury bank for 23 years, and was its President for several years prior to 1881, when he was compelled to resign on account of numerous other engagements. He is also a director of the Rutland railroad.

As a friend of the college Mr. Stewart has no equal. His liberality has already made itself evident. Middlebury College may well feel proud of the noble son who has brought so many honors to her.

The American College student lives in a peculiar world. "Obscurity is his bane." Graduating his efforts upon the scale of hope, it is imperative that that hope should be, to a certain extent, realized, and that his plans should find illustration. He needs approbation or criticism. How secure them? Evidently by obtaining some avenue by which he may be brought before a critical public, an avenue by which he may anticipate the experiences that are sure to beset him in his life work. In appreciation of these facts, made manifest no doubt by location, the students of Middlebury College, as early as 1831, established a college journal, the Undergraduate, which, with one exception—the Brunonian—is the oldest paper of its kind in the United States. The prime mover in this enterprise was Dr. Blanchard, whose portrait graces this number and a sketch of whose life is given elsewhere. The appearance of the journal supplied a long-felt need. Dr. Blanchard was a man of marked literary ability, and he gave the paper sufficient popularity to draw the fire of the secular and religious press. A few years after his graduation, however, financial embarrassments resulted in its discontinuance, but the work commenced by him, though interrupted many years, resulted in the re-establishment of the paper. And now, after the lapse of well-nigh sixty years, the Undergraduate sends greeting to its founder and friend, and hopes that he may long live to see it, and the college it represents, a source of pleasure to all, but especially to the alumni.

The following note will speak for itself:

Gentlemen—After the reporters left on the occasion of the last annual dinner of the Middlebury College Alumni Association of Boston and vicinity, Rev. G. W. Brooks of Boston offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

"In grateful recognition of the persistent and successful efforts of President Brainerd and Hon. L. D. Eldredge to promote the interests of Middlebury College, the members of the Alumni Association of Boston and vicinity extend to them their sincere and hearty thanks."

Respectfully, GEO. W. WARE, JR.

NOW that a new general catalogue is being prepared, would it be too much to ask that the postoffice address of the alumni be given? Even a short experience in sending out sample copies of the Undergraduate convinces us that, as a means of facilitating correspondence, the old catalogue is good for nothing. Of course the societies have the addresses of their respective members, but their catalogues include only about one-half the alumni, and besides they are seldom at the disposal of the business manager or editors. We do not desire to weigh down the shoulders of THE history of journalism in Middlebury College is involved in considerable obscurity. In the Philomathesian for June, 1834—it's last number—the author of "A Glimpse of the Spirits," who is seeking to learn the future of the Philomathesian, makes Apollo say, "What, Lac-tantius! are not the Adelphi, the Undergraduate, the Shrine, and the Medley sufficient examples?" By the "Adelphi," the "Shrine," and the "Medley," reference is evidently made to local collegiate journals, but just when they were published, or how important a part they played in the journalistic enterprise of the college, we have found it impossible to determine. The first journal, files of which we have been able to obtain, is the Undergraduate, founded in 1830 or 1831, by Dr. Blanchard, a member of the class of 1832. The executive ability of Dr. Blanchard, and the literary character of student life at that time, made the paper successful, not merely as a champion of the college, but also as the opponent of "existing evils." But in the graduation of Dr. Blanchard's class the paper lost its best friends, and this fact, coupled with financial embarrassment, resulted in the discontinuance of the paper. Only two years elapsed, however, before the members of the Philadelphian and Philomathesian societies established the Philomathesian. Its purpose and character are well set forth in the following quotation from its salutatory: "The work will consist of essays, occasional poems, and comments upon new publications, tales, poetic contributions, and such dissertations upon scientific subjects as shall be deemed expedient. Exertions will be made, by introducing variety, to entertain and amuse the fancy, to instruct the understanding and furnish the aliment for the thinking mind." In furtherance of this plan the paper accomplished more than it had promised. Its prose contributions, a prominent feature of which was comedy and novellettes, display a certain depth of thought and purity of diction, seldom seen in the college paper of today; while its poetry partook of the "good old classic ring and beauty," characteristic of the literature of the times.

But the fate of the Philomathesian, like that of the Undergraduate, was to "suffer for shekels," and it lived but a year. Fortunately, however, a complete file of the paper is preserved in the college library.

After this the journalistic spirit seems to have been rather lethargic, until the winter of 1876, when W. W. Gay, now telegraph editor of the Chicago Daily News, reestablished the Undergraduate, which has been published monthly during college year ever since. At first it suffered greatly from the need of funds, but the hearty support received from the alumni during recent years has placed the paper on a firm financial basis, and given it a circulation exceeded by but few collegiate journals. The Undergraduate seeks to represent the different phases of student life at Middlebury, to further the interests of the college in its official capacity, and, above all, to be a college newspaper, having in view the interests of the alumni.

Full many a year among the trees
You’ve reared your weather-beaten walls,
And many a ghost of student glee
Still wanders through your ancient halls.

And if but power to speak you had,
You’d many a mirthful story tell
Of hornings, feasts and poker games,
Which lasted till the morning bell.

At other times you’d sing perchance
A mournful, sad and cheerless lay
Of “horses,” “cribs” and aching heads,
When came examination day.

But still the checkered life goes on,
And still you stand among the trees,
And rear your cold, gray, storied walls
Filled with their throng of memories.

Requiescat in pace
Epilogue.

THE curtain falls in silent state;
The plaudits of the house abate,
    And crowding through the green-room door.
The wearied actors leave the floor,—
I only at the footlights wait.

The play is all of youth's estate,
With college loves and joys elate—
    But yet a sadness comes, before
The curtain falls.

'Tis no fine story we relate;
Be to its faults compassionate.
    We only cry with those of yore,
Nunc plaudite! The play is o'er.
At last, good-night; the hour is late,
The curtain falls.

If All Run Down

have no appetite, lack ambition, and are always tired, you are as much in need of medicine as if sick abed. With unstrung nerves, torpid liver, and weakened kidneys, you really can't say what ails you, but you know you are all run down. Paine's Celery Compound is what you need. It is a scientific combination of herbal remedies, and will strengthen the nerves, and restore liver and kidneys to healthy action. It is a medicine that imparts life and energy to the whole system, with lasting good effects. Soda water tonics and alcoholic stimulants do more harm than good, as their exhilaration is followed by a depression of spirits, and a more ready yielding to the weakening effects of hot weather.

Paine's Celery Compound

Is prescribed by many physicians when their patients complain of being run down, or are troubled with sleeplessness, headache, neuralgia, hysteria, and other nervous disorders, and both they and the patients agree in endorsing it as the most valuable medicine upon the market. Paine's Celery Compound is especially needed at this season, when the whole system is debilitated by the wear and tear of work or play in the extreme heat. Can you afford the time and cost of a vacation? Paine's Celery Compound will remove the need of one. It is the only hot weather tonic that has true medicinal value. It is compounded from the formula of a successful physician, and as a general invigorator has no equal. When all run down from heat or overwork, remember that Paine's Celery Compound Will Brace You Up.

FOR THE NERVOUS, THE DEBILITATED, THE AGED.
